

EPV European Primate Veterinarians is sponsoring a series of 2 free webinars to help its members to work better in the scientific environment.

We decided this time to focus not on the animals or science but rather we want to focus on you & your co-workers.

Those 2 webinars will help you to be better and more efficient & productive at your work.

We choose to lead those webinars Dr. Ellen Preussing which worked in the scientific field for many years and in the last years shifted to coaching and training.

All you need to do to participate is to register in advance to EPV LinkedIn group

Registration to webinars in this link:

LightWings 1st webinar

EPV webinar page

We invite you to EPV webinars

In collaboration with LightWings Preussing, EPV is offering to its members those 2 interesting webinars for free. Register now and enjoy this opportunity to make your working place better.

1st How to communicate effectively in a scientific environment

Studies point out that many of us spend 70%- 80% of our working hours in some form of communication. Every person has an own communication style, which is related to personality, habits and perspective. In this webinar you will learn how these styles and communication in general work. You will learn explicit, practical ways how this can make your life at work easier.

Date

Oct. 11th, 2018

Training time

45 min

2nd

How to motivate your lab staff

Motivation is crucial for good results and thus for your success as a team. This webinar will explain methods & psychological effects of intrinsic and extrinsic motivation. It will help you to understand the motivational needs, your role as a supervisor and how your team members can play a part.

Date

February, 2019

Training time

45 min